Few know, though, what a battle it was for Doty to rebuild his life and rebound from the profound depression he sank into after the crash. He was one of the nice guys -- a tough competitor but universally well-liked by colleagues and fans. That was in 1964, and a whole new world has discovered NASCAR since then. In this best-selling introductory textbook, the authors' signature storytelling style and uncanny eye for revealing examples will help you understand how economic concepts play out in our world. Highly recommended. When it comes to explaining fundamental economic principles by drawing on current economic issues and events, there is no one more effective than Nobel laureate and New York Times columnist Paul Krugman and co-authors, Robin Wells, Iris Au, and Jack Parkinson. In 2015, he joined the faculty of the Graduate Center of the City University of New York, associated with the Luxembourg Income Study, which tracks and analyzes income inequality around the world. It's a good read, but likely not on the recommended list of NASCAR's relentlessly cheerful, forward-looking, Chamber of Commerce-inspired public-relations staffers, who would just as soon forget the sport was ever less -- or more -- than it is now. NASCAR just signed a deal consolidating TV coverage that should be worth about $400 million a year, about four times what the fees went for in 1999. Johnson came from the backwoods, hauling bootleg whiskey -- and often getting arrested and jailed for it -- before he managed to make enough money racing to officially change careers. In addition to his teaching and academic research, Krugman writes extensively for nontechnical audiences. Steve Waid heads up the editorial side of NASCAR's Winston Cup Scene and Winston Cup Illustrated. They had a [drug] delivery system that I could apply with my thumb, and I kept it working. They pull few punches in Brave in Life -- there are, for instance, plenty of mug shots from Junior's early arrests -- although we would have liked more on Johnson's self-imposed exile from a sport he helped to build. His research has included trailblazing work on international trade, economic geography, and currency crises. His earlier books, Peddling Prosperity and The Age of Diminished Expectations, have become modern classics. He was hospitalized for weeks and nearly died. You may be able to find more information about this and similar content at piano.io About When it comes to explaining fundamental economic principles by drawing on current economic issues and events, there is no one more effective than Nobel laureate and New York Times columnist Paul Krugman and co-authors, Robin Wells, Iris Au, and Jack Parkinson. He is a regular op-ed columnist for the New York Times. That career shift was memorialized by a big Tom Wolfe story in Esquire magazine titled "Junior Johnson Is the Last American Hero -- Yes!" (which inspired the 1973 film The Last American Hero, starring Jeff Bridges). And it got where it is today largely through the efforts of colorful pioneers such as Junior Johnson, an excellent driver who went on to become a successful team owner. Robin Wells was a lecturer and researcher in Economics at Princeton University, where she has taught undergraduate courses. She received her BA from the University of Chicago and her PhD from the University of California, Berkeley; she then did her postdoctoral work at MIT. She has taught at the University of Michigan, the University of Southampton (United Kingdom), Stanford, and MIT. Her teaching and research focus on the theory of organizations and incentives. He received his BA from Yale and his PhD from MIT. Except that with Doty there really weren't any faults. Tom Higgins wrote about NASCAR for the Charlotte Observer from 1964 until he retired in 1997, and few know more about NASCAR, or write more fluently about it. He also spent a year on the staff of the Council of Economic Advisers in 1982-1983. Although stock-car racing salutes its past when it's profitable to do so -- such as during its 50th anniversary marketing blitz of 1998 -- NASCAR is far more concerned with marketing deals and stock options than how it got where it is today. When a career-ending tragedy like that befalls a driver, few colleagues will publicly recall his faults, as they speak only of his more ennobling qualities. Junior Johnson: Brave in Life, by Tom Higgins and Steve Waid; softcover, 192 pages, $29.95; Phoenix, Arizona: David Bull Publishing, 1999. "For the first few days, it was me and my thumb, pumping morphine. God, I was hurting." Still Wide Open is an honest, inspirational account of Doty's life, as told by Doty and co-author Dave Argabright, a Car and Driver contributor and columnist for National Speed Sport News. His best-selling trade books include End This Depression Now!, The Return of Depression Economics and the Crisis of 2008, a history of recent economic troubles and their implications for economic policy, and The Conscience of a Liberal, a study of the political economy of economic inequality and its relationship with political polarization from the Gilded Age to the present. From his wheelchair, Doty has remained close to sprint-car racing, working as a color commentator for TNN's television coverage of the World of Outlaws sprint-car series. Sprint-car-racing fans still know former driver Brad Doty, despite the fact that a serious crash in 1988 at Ohio's Eldora Speedway left him paralyzed from the waist down. And he still is. In 1991, Krugman received the American Economic Association's John Bates Clark medal.
